"that the discovery of Dr. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE is a greater blessing to the human race than even the discovery of Vaccination." This remedy is invaluable for all diseases, and is indispensable to Travellers, and Families, a few doses being generally sufficient.

Dr. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE.—The Right Hon. Earl Russell communicated to the College of Physicians and J. T. Ravenhill, the he had received information to the effect that the only remedy of any service in Chorea was Chlorodyne.—See "Lancet," December 31, 1864.

Dr. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE.—Extract from "Medical Times," January 12, 1866.—It is prescribed by several of orthodox medical practitioners. Of course it would not be thus singularly popular did it not supply a want and fill a place.

Dr. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE is the best and most complete Remedy for Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, etc.

From A. Montgomery, Esq., late Inspector of Hospitals, Bombay.—Chlorodyne is a most valuable remedy in Neuralgia, Asthma, and Dysentery. To it I fairly owe my restoration to health after eighteen months' severe suffering, and when all other medicines had failed.

It is necessary to warn the public that some spurious imitations are to be seen in the printed works, and are devoid of the true properties of the only genuine, viz.: Dr. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S, as was proved before Vice-Chancellor Sir W. P. Brown, in the Court of Chancery, in case Browne vs. Freeman, when the Vice-Chancellor stated that the story of Freeman being the Inventor was DELIBERATELY UNTRUE.

The "Medical Times," January 12, 1866.—It is prescribed by several of orthodox medical practitioners. Of course it would not be thus singularly popular did it not supply a want and fill a place.

THE BRITISH COLONIST.

Tuesday Morning, June 1, 1869.

Our evening cotemporary has a leader on the "merited rebuke" administered by His Honor the Chief Justice for an evident overstepping of the limits to which prudent journalists will always confine themselves. It is a well understood maxim of English law that a man is innocent until proved guilty, and we are not aware that that has been established in respect to the Indian John. We must not be misunderstood in relation to our estimate of the privileges that belong to the press as the mouthpiece of the people and the medium of public information, but in that position we must not forget that the mere publication of certain opinions may not be fulfilling that duty to the public, because it may be premature or calculated in some other way to inflict public injury. Freedom as the privilege of the press no more signifies license than the freedom which is permitted in polite circles of society; if the privileges there allowed were exceeded, there would be an end of all propriety and good breeding—a result that would be most deplorable. How much more serious would be the consequences of an unbridled press, particularly in a new country like this, and more especially in the case of the Indian John where the jury are allowed to go whether they please and converse with everyone without distinction, and where they might be called upon to pronounce a verdict upon the unfortunate Indian strongly biased by the press and the persons thereby influenced. We have always shown ourselves consistently proud of our mission and keenly jealous of any interference in our rights with which are identified those of the public; but rather than see public justice impeded and the very rights of which we are supposed to be the champions jeopardised, we would resign our pen and support the appointment of a public censor. Our readers are well acquainted with the many dreadful consequences of a venal press; modern literature has abundantly furnished us with examples; we need not, therefore, cite any here. Our object is simply to deprecate the discussion of a subject that involves the most sacred principle of human justice—the administration of the law. The object of the rebuke had done all he could to exculpate himself, and, in our way of thinking, had made out a better case than his evening ally tried to do for him. But this is not all; if his retreat was not the most creditable, at any rate he pleased himself, and people were not inclined to take any farther notice of his breach of good taste. But this striking example of over-zealous friendship has dragged the master before the public in a manner that can not be ignored. There is another phase of the case to which our public duty compels us to allude; the very high position in public esteem which English Judges have always held for their unswerving justice and unimpeachable honor has been an honest source of pride to every man who boasted allegiance to the old flag, and has become a kind of settled conviction with all. Thus the animadversions of writers such as those alluded to, are not likely to have any influence so far as the respect is concerned which all feel for the present occupants of the judicial chair in this Colony; but stray numbers of their papers may get abroad, and in that case the ignorance of strangers as to the position of journalism here might lead to a misapprehension, much to be regretted. We trust that henceforth more prudence will be shown and that citizens will disown any such impropriety as an attempt to prejudice a case while on trial, or to remind a Judge that his course on the bench does not meet the approval of the vox populi on the streets corners.

Agricultural Society's Prize List.

EDITOR BRITISH COLONIST—Will the framers or framers of the Agricultural Society's Prize List, for the next show, permit me through your columns to ask what object is sought to be accomplished by restricting the competition for the prizes offered for field turnips and mangold, to growers of not less than four acres of the former and one acre of the latter? I have always labored under the old country idea that excellence usually carried off the prizes at competitive shows and that quantity, beyond the number specified, had no weight with the judges in making their awards. Besides, how are the to know whether the specimens shown were culled from four acres, or are more carefully cultivated specimens from a few yards of land—in fact they have no check on fraud—and so the conditions are useless.

If the object is to encourage farmers to cultivate these valuable root crops on a more extensive scale than they have hitherto done, it is a good one, but I fear the means for accomplishing so great a desideratum have been badly chosen. I could have understood the ### Court of Assize and General Gaol Delivery.

[BEFORE CHIEF JUSTICE NERDHAM.]

Monday, May 31st.

The Court sat at 11 o'clock. Capt Edye,
R. N., occupied a seat on the bench.

CRIMPING.

Wm. Lyons was placed in the dock to plead to an indictment charging him with enticing one of H. M's Marines to desert from the service. The prisoner pleaded not guilty. The Attorney General appeared for the prosecution and Mr Robertson, instructed by Messrs Courtney and Bishop, for the defence.

Levi Roberts, sworn—Am a private in the artillery belonging to H. M. S. Satellite; met Lyons on the 14th of April last, towards dark, at his home at the foot of Johnson street; went into his house; there was a person there who represented himself to be the captain of a ship; a man named Brown was there; Lyons asked me to go on board the ship Alaska for $35 a month; I was in uniform; he said, I can't speak to you while you're in uniform; change your clothes; I did so and slept in the house that night; I was locked in and could not get out; in the morning, Gibbons, the waiting man let me out; I walked up the road and was taken by a policeman as a deserter and was confined for 45 days.

Cross-examined by Mr Robertson—When I went to Lyons' I was in that state when a man may be easily persuaded; I cannot recollect everything that took place during that day in Lyons' house; I did not intend to desert when I went to Lyons' house; when I changed my clothes, I intended to go on board the Alaska; when I was tried before my officers I said I did not intend to desert; I didn't tell the truth at that time, but I don't call that kind of a lie a lie (a laugh). I was not asked by anybody to give evidence against Lyons; I was visited by shipmates while in prison, but said nothing to them about that case. After I was committed to prison I heard that Lyons had given the information to the policeman by whom I was arrested, I heard that after I was arrested; I don't think anything about convicting Lyons; my object in coming here is not to get even with him for having me put in prison, my grog was stopped while I was in prison, which is not comfortable in cold weather (a laugh). I expect no reward for coming here; I have not heard from any proper authority that I am to be rewarded; since I have been here I have learned that a reward has been offered by the Admiral for such men as Lyons; if he is convicted I have no claim to make; if it's right I shall get it—if not, not.

Re-examined—I recollect distinctly the conversation with Lyons.

Wm. Henry Edye, R. N.—Am captain of H. M. S. Satellite; the witness—Levi Roberts—is one of the men serving on board the Satellite.

By the Court—The Admiral has issued no order offering a reward for persons giving evidence against crimp; policemen are rewarded upon conviction.

Cross-examined—Roberts has not, to the best of my knowledge, been up before me for any offence before this; so far as my knowledge extends he is a sober and attentive man.

Richard Dorman, sworn—Am an ordinary seaman on board H. M. S. Satellite. On the 14th of April last was invited by Lyons to go to his house and take a glass of beer. He told me he was shipping master and kept the Drury Lane. I went in and saw Richard and Roberts; he [Lyons] asked me if I wanted to ship and offered me $35 advance to do so; he told me I must change my clothes—I was in uniform—and that he would get me a suit until morning, he gave Richard half-a-dollar for stopping the light and board Lyons say he would give Roberts $35 to ship.

Cross-examined—Roberts was the worse for liquor, I saw him shut in a room for the night by Lyons, and Gibbons, Lyons' bar-keeper, opened the door in the morning and lot Roberts out.

Henry Richard, sworn—Am second gun-room steward on board H. M. S. Satellite. Lyons said to Roberts, do you want to ship, [the remainder of this witness's evidence was corroborative of the previous testimony.] The case for the prosecution here rested.

Mr Robertson, on behalf of the prisoner, here claimed an acquittal on the ground that the evidence brought forward by the Crown did not support the indictment—the offence being that of a man who pursued another to leave his duty, not his allegiance; he quoted the Navy Discipline Act, 1857, sec. 25, to show that the penalty was by a fine of £30. The statute Geo. III, upon which the prosecution depended was not in force. An interval of half-an-hour was given to the jury. Upon His Lordship resuming his seat, he informed the counsel for the defence that he would reserve the points raised till after the case had been referred to the jury on the facts. Mr Robertson then addressed the jury for the defence and made a forcible appeal on the grounds that Roberts had made statements directly at variance and was not a trustworthy witness.

Wm. Nicol, sworn—Said he was a saloon-keeper; he knew Roberts and had a conversation with him about the middle of April in witness' house; Roberts asked witness how he could get over the Sound as he wanted to leave H. M. S. Satellite; witness told him he could not inform him, and that he thought there were plenty on the other side who would be glad to get back again; Roberts was sober at the time; he was dressed in uniform.

Cross-examined—He had heard Roberts was arrested, he could not say s. of his own knowledge; would not swear that that was after the 14th April; he was sure Roberts did not wish to go over the Sound because he wanted to pay a visit.

The Attorney General desired to recall Roberts to rebut the last witness, but it was objected to.

His Lordship then put the case to the jury: He told them that there were three points for them to decide upon. 1st, was Roberts Her Majesty's service. 2nd, did he know that fact. 3d, was the prisoner of endeavouring to seduce. His Lordship carefully reviewed the evidence and pointed out the salient points pro and con for the consideration of the jury. The jury returned, and after a brief absence, returned a verdict of guilty with a strong recommendation to mercy. His Lordship assured them that their recommendation should have every weight, and that he would give the case his most mature consideration and pass sentence to-day.

SENTENCE.

Henry William White was called up, and having declined to say anything, His Lordship proceeded to pass sentence. He said the jury had taken a very merciful view of the case, and he did not know that they were justified in going so far as they did; had the bullet gone two inches more in a particular direction the man Anderson would certainly have been killed and the life of the prisoner forfeited. The mere carrying of so dangerous a weapon with intent, would have rendered him liable to fourteen years penal servitude. He had given the case his most careful consideration, and did not think the ends of justice would be served with a lighter sentence than the one he was about to pass. The sentence of the Court was that the prisoner be confined in gaol for twelve months and kept to hard labor. The prisoner's counsel proceeded to make objection to the part of the sentence involving hard labor, but did not appear to have raised any point that His Lordship thought could have any weight; at his earnest request His Lordship promised to stay the infliction of hard labor till Mr Wood had been heard in mitigation.

COURTING UNDER DIFFICULTIES.—Rooster-Eye, an aborigine, appeared before the Police Magistrate yesterday to answer a charge of stealing a hat and coat, valued at $4, from another Indian rejoicing in the high-toned name of Bruce. The Rooster, who looked like anything but crowing, explained that he was courting Bruce's sister, and only borrowed the apparel to make a respectable appearance on the Sabbath. He offered to settle the matter by marrying the girl, but the Magistrate said that if the prisoner and Bruce were satisfied with the arrangement, justice was not, and sentenced the crestfallen bird to three months' imprisonment.

SOMETHING LIKE A ROPE.—Messrs. John and Edwin Wright, Gammon street, Birmingham, have just made an extraordinary rope with hemp cord and wire strands, for shipment abroad. It is 11,000 yards long, measures 5½ inches in circumference, and consists of 12,000 strands. The length of wire, in 60 threads, is 726,000 yards, or 41½ miles. The length of yarn used for the centre—namely, 27 threads—is 405,000 yards, or about 230 miles. Thus there is a grand total of 1,131,000 yards, or 635 miles of material, to make a wire and hemp rope a mile under six miles long.

A "VELOCITY" UP-ET.—Last evening a young man riding a velocipede along the Government street sidewalk encountered an inebriated individual who tumbled vehicle and rider into the gutter with the remark that "no one shall ride a velocity along the sidewalks if I can help it." The rider of the "velocity" was not seen after the upset.

A TIGHT SQUEEZE.—The Northwest Territory, in the Canadian Parliament, was only taken over by a majority of eleven votes. This, in a House that contained a Government majority of 45, is rather a tight squeeze, in the English Parliament so close a vote would be a virtual defeat.

THE DISTRICT REPRESENTATIVE.—Mr. DeCosmo, we learn has canvassed the districts for the vacant seat, and, it is stated, has secured a large number of pledges. Upon what platform of principles Mr. DeCosmos will take his stand, we are uninformed. Mr. W. J. Macdonald, former Mayor, will probably put forward in opposition to Mr. DeCosmos.

BAYNES SOUND COAL MINE.—Mr. John Trutch is engaged in surveying the line of a tramway from the Baynes Sound coal seam to the water's edge. The mine is situated some five miles up the Sound and the tramway will end at a good harbor where the largest class of ships may load.

STRAUKE.—The ship Alice M. Minot, while being towed through Flumper Pass at 12½ o'clock yesterday morning, struck upon a small sunken rock and lost a short strip of copper. Beyond this no damage was sustained and she will sail in a day or two for Valparaiso.

FROM PUGET SOUND.—The steamer Wilson G. Hunt arrived at 7 o'clock last evening from ports on Puget Sound, bringing 35 passengers. Mr. N. Koschland, an old-time Victorian, now of Portland, Oregon, came over. Capt. Waitt and Purser Myrick have our thanks for the usual favors.

THE CALIFORNIA, overdue from San Francisco, had not arrived up to the hour of our going to press this morning. Some anxiety is felt concerning her; but it will be probable ascertained that strong northerly winds and bad sea have retarded her progress.

TOWED DOWN.—The ship Alice M. Minot, from Moody's Mills, lumber laden for Valparaiso, was towed down by the steamer Isabel last evening.

DROWNED AT PORT DISCOVERY.—A young man named John Clarke, a native of England, was drowned in Port Discovery bay on the 15th ult. It seems that, with two associates, he took a leaky canoe and started out from the shore, and had proceeded about fifty yards when the canoe filled and sank. His companions swam back to the shore, while poor Clarke, who could not swim, was drowned.

CROSS-EXAMINED.—He had heard Roberts was arrested, he could not say s. of his own knowledge; would not swear that that was after the 14th April; he was sure Roberts did not wish to go over the Sound because he wanted to pay a visit.

The Attorney General desired to recall

Roberts to rebut the last witness, but it was objected to.

His Lordship then put the case to the jury:

He told them that there were three points for them to decide upon. 1st, was Roberts Her Majesty's service. 2nd, did he know that fact. 3d, was the prisoner of endeavouring to seduce.

A telegram from San Francisco stated that Mr. John C. Keenan, formerly Chief Engineer of the Victoria Fire Department, dropped dead on the 25th ult. of heart disease.

CHARLES DICKENS is, it seems, been ordered by his medical adviser to discontinue his public readings for the present. His voice and heart are said to be affected.

MISS BRADDON, the novelist, is in very bad health, and obliged for the present to give up all work.

THE STEAMSHIP CALIFORNIA is advertised in the Olympia papers to sail from Victoria for San Francisco direct on Wednesday (to-morrow).
